Brief History	Peeters is a publisher of academic journals and bibliographic databases established in 1857 in Belgium. It publishes the International Philosophical Bibliography (French: Répertoire bibliographique de la philosophie). IPB online was launched in 1997 (IPB at Peeters Online Bibliographies). The database is updated 4 times a year and enables users to make extensive searches.

Scope and Coverage

It covers major field of contemporary philosophy like metaphysics and ontology, logic, the theory of knowledge, the philosophy of science, language, mathematics, nature, mind and action (philosophical anthropology), ethics, social and political philosophy, the philosophy of law, culture, art, religion, history and education. The bibliography is updated by specialists with privileged access to the content of many scholarly books and journals, notably through regular work with publishing houses. All the data is selected according to rigorous criteria and undergoes detailed checks to ensure it is both relevant and accurate. Every year over 12,000 new references are added, including books, edited volumes, journal articles, contributions, and reviews.
