

Home Page

Logo

URL

<http://www.australia.gov.au/>

Subject

Australia – Politics and Government - Directories

Accessibility

Free

Language

English

Publisher

Department of Finance (Australia)

Brief History

www.fed.gov.au was first launched in May 1998, providing access to all Australian Government information on the web through search, subject trees and indexes.

www.australia.gov.au was launched in February 2002 as the entry point to the Australian Government customer and subject portals. The Australian Government Portals Framework underpinned the site.

There was no clear distinction between www.australia.gov.au and www.fed.gov.au. To avoid confusion, in 2004 a new entry point was created by combining the two web sites. The new site continued to use the name www.australia.gov.au.

Scope and Coverage

Australia.gov.au is an Australian public sector website, created by the Government of Australia to provide a single entry point to government in Australia. It links to information and services from around 900 Australian Government websites, as well as selected State and Territory government resources. The site indexes over four million pages from Australian Federal, State and Territory governments, using both metadata and full text indexes.

Information Source and services that are given by Australia.gov.au are.....

Kind of Information

Australia.gov.au puts visitors on the right path to find the information they need by linking to information and services on many Australian government websites as well as selected state and territory resources.

From About Govt. visitors can get information about Australian Govt. Here one can find lists of Australian departments and agencies, government services, how to contact and engage with government and parliament, where to enroll to vote, how to locate government publications, and how our system of government works. There are some popular links. They are.....

Popular links
List of departments and agencies
Government by portfolio
Government ministry
Government gazettes
A - Z of government sites
Parliament of Australia
State parliaments and members contacts
Capital cities
Style manual
Budget statements

State and territory government sections under this popular links include links to State, Territory and Local government entry points.

States, Territories and Local Government
Select your state or territory for links to the main government entry points, contact directories, departments and agencies lists and their local government directories.
ACT NSW NT Qld SA Tas Vic WA Other territories
Australian Capital Territory
> Australian Capital Territory government entry point ↗
> Access Canberra ↗
Government directory
> Australian Capital Territory Government Directory ↗
Departments and agencies
> ACT government directorates ↗

Users can find specific Australian Government agency web sites using an A-Z list of Government sites or search using keywords to locate a link to the web site they are looking for. The Directories section also provides links to Parliamentary and Executive contacts and to the Government Online Directory, which allows users to search or browse for Australian Government organisations, structure and key people.

The Government Media Release Service is a subscription based daily notification of current Australian Government media releases. This also includes an index and search function for all Australian Government media pages included in the service.

Special Features

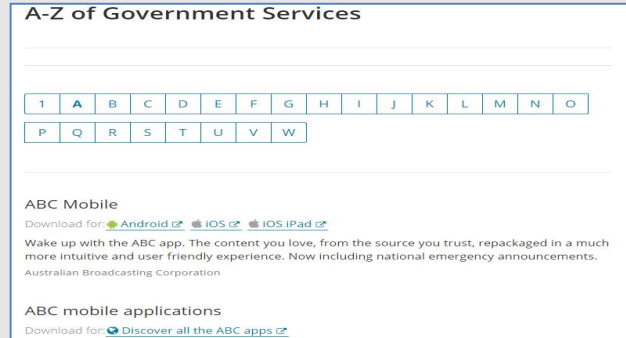

- ❖ Links with MyGov.
- ❖ Upcoming public holidays are given.
- ❖ Govt.'s recent promoted schemes, services are listed in the last portion of the home page.

Arrangement Pattern

Topics in Information & Services are arranged category-wise.

Govt. Services are arranged alphabetically.

Remarks

Australia.gov.au is an Australian public sector website, created by the Government of Australia to provide a single entry point to government in Australia.

Comparable Tools

- Gov.au (<https://www.gov.au/>)
- Australian Government Directory (<http://www.directory.gov.au/>)

Date of Access

13th April, 2017.